ABOUT RICH

BUILT IN BUSINESS. DRIVEN BY TRANSFORMATION.

Rich Fournier is an entrepreneur, business leader, performance coach, and founder of Entrepreneur Performance Network™ (EPN).

With more than 15 years of experience in real estate, leadership, and coaching, Rich has spent his career working in competitive business environments where results matter, decisions have consequences, and personal performance makes the difference.

Over those years, he observed something that fundamentally shaped his approach to business and personal development: many capable, ambitious people don't struggle because they lack knowledge or opportunity. They struggle because their beliefs, habits, and personal standards aren't consistently aligned with what they want to achieve.

That realization became the foundation of Entrepreneur Performance Network™ and its flagship program, The Path to Transformation™.

Today, Rich works with entrepreneurs and business owners who understand that lasting success isn't simply about finding better strategies. It's about examining how they think, the decisions they make, the standards they accept, and ultimately, who they're becoming.

As host of The Entrepreneur Standard, Rich explores these ideas through conversations with entrepreneurs and business leaders about the decisions, setbacks, reinventions, and personal standards that shape their success.

His perspective brings together real-world business leadership and the principles of personal transformation, challenging entrepreneurs to look beyond what they do and examine the person behind their performance.
